Improving your IT strategy

Assessment

Let ResultsPositive perform an IT Asset Management current state assessment to determine how well your organization is performing Asset Management by answering the following key questions:

- Are technologies introduced and evaluated periodically based on the current business needs of the organization?
- Are costs of ownership for all leased or purchased assets identified and tracked?
- Do service level agreements with vendors exist?
- Are policies, procedures, and standards defined, documented, and used to manage the life cycle of assets in the environment?
- Is an IT architectural plan used to guide purchases of hardware and software assets for the environment based on business needs?
- Are the systems configurations maintained? Do the system configurations allow for duplication in the event that an asset must be replaced?
- Can the organization monitor effectively for valid licensing of software on the servers and desktops? Is this process automated?

- Did IT costs align with the budget plan or exceed in the previous year?

Roadmap Development

ResultsPositive can help you develop an IT Asset Management roadmap for your organization.

Identify core organizational areas within Asset Management to include in a roadmap strategy to improve capabilities. Functional Areas to consider:

- Contracts Management
- Procurement Management
- Portfolio Management
- Services Catalog

Defining a strategic roadmap to address one or more of these functional areas will ensure alignment with business objectives.
